> es of the west are being fenced in and farmed more extensively. The ranch method of raising beef is being supplantek by the more expensive method of feeding. Our export of cattle has increased he can do sofat a profit. Until he tremendously within the past can see a profit to himself in few decades. Our population, too, has been increasing rapidly. All these facts combine to make beef scarce.

With the scarcity of beef has come also the rise of the high cost of living. We ca the beef animal for this. This animal has been affected by the

The chiestions to this plan far outweigh the arguments in its THE INNOCENTS favor. In the first place it couts more movey to put a nound of gain on a two year old than it does on the calf. The young calf makes more rapid gains than the mature animal. If the farmers were compelled to mature their animals they would suffer a pesitive loss. Since the profperity of the country depends on the prosperity of the farmer, the whole country would suffer. Suppose all animals were raised, what would be the quality of our cattle? The scrubs as well as the good animals would be encouraged; we would less the benefits we have derived through years of selection and feeding. If such a live stock law were passed, the results would be eisastrous to the entire country. The quality of meat put on the market would also be lowered. The best quality imals, and if the poor animals animals are either poor, or medium, in grade, and these animals would produce other animals of the same grade, since like producan like.

Thus we can see that any such regulatiods would prove disastrous. The solution for the difficulty is an economic one. The farmer will produce more beef if raising beef he will devote his attention to something more

With more beef the price might be lower, it is doubtful it it would be much lower, however, since there are other factors such as the cost of feed, and the cost of labor that could not be reduced.

since there are other factors such exercise and less sofa, more pudding and less piano, more frankness and less mothing modesty, If more calves were matured more breakfast and less bustle. there would be more chance for these animals reproducing. There is a serious objection to this method, as will be pointed out God of Nature designed.
